Ansel Adams Photographs Rocklin

by Gary Day

Oaks and granite outcroppings were Ansel Adams' favorite subjects

In the late 1950s and early 1960s Sunset International Petroleum Corporation bought up the southern 12,000 acres of Joel Parker Whitney's 22,000-acre Spring Valley Ranch and started to develop a self-contained metropolis of 100,000 residents called Sunset City. Sunset abandoned the project in the mid-1960s because of slow real estate sales but during the past 40 years, the property has been the site of most of Rocklin's expansion. Stanford Ranch, Clover Valley, Whitney Oaks, and other neighborhoods north and west of the historic downtown Rocklin are astride Sunset's intended city. In 1962 Sunset's Assistant Vice President Dale Stringfellow hired renowned naturalist and photographer Ansel Adams to produce publicity photos of scenic features of the Whitney Ranch.

Stringfellow remembers seeing Adams in action. "He thoroughly loved his work," said Stringfellow. "He would pick a scene and then observe it from dawn to dusk, finding the precise sun angle that suited his eye. I had dinner with him twice during his stint here and he was struck by the beauty of the property,"

Common Area Etiquette

One of the wonderful aspects of living in an Association is having beautiful areas for you and your neighbors to enjoy. However, it takes a village to keep these areas nice.

Please remember to properly dispose of all litter and trash. Loose trash items like fast food wrappers and water bottles on trails and streets, and create an unkept look. (This also goes for picking up after our furry friends.)

Also, be courteous when parking. Make sure that vehicles are not parked blocking any areas of ingress or egress and that sidewalks are clear for pedestrian traffic. Please also note that parking in front of a fire hydrant is never acceptable.

Thank you for your continued efforts to keep our community a lovely place to live! ■

Wishing you and your family good health, happiness and success in the new year!
